

How to Set a Lead Status

Front-desk guide · v3 · takes about four minutes to read

Sample data - portfolio illustration

Every report the marketing team produces is built from the status you set on a lead. If the status is wrong, the report is wrong. This guide covers the five statuses, when to use each, and the three mistakes that cause almost all of the mess.

The five statuses

Contacted

You spoke to them, or they replied. Any two-way contact counts.

Toured

They physically visited. Set this only after the tour has happened.

Enrolled

Paperwork signed. This is the one the whole funnel is measured on.

Nurture

Interested, but not now. Give it a follow-up date or it will be forgotten.

Lost

They told you no, or three attempts got no answer. Say which in the note.

Setting one, step by step

- 1 Open the lead from the Leads list. Do not use the search bar shortcut - it opens a read-only view.
- 2 Click the Status field at the top right. It is a dropdown, not a text box.
- 3 Pick the status. If you pick Nurture, a date field appears - fill it in.
- 4 Write a one-line note. "Called, no answer, 2nd attempt" is enough. "n/a" is not.
- 5 Press Save. The row turns grey for a second, then green. Green means it saved.

What the form looks like

Lead · A. Whitfield · Ashgrove

Status	Contacted ▼
Follow-up date	-
Note	Called, no answer, 2nd attempt

The highlighted field is the only one the reports read. The note is for your colleagues.

The three mistakes that break the reports

- Leaving the status blank.
A blank lead is invisible to every report. It is not counted as lost, it is not counted at all.
- Putting the source in the status field.
"Facebook" is not a status. Source is already recorded automatically - never retype it.
- Setting Enrolled before the paperwork is signed.
Enrolment is the number the budget is set from. An early tick becomes a wrong forecast.
